

What is Technical Analysis ?

In its simplest sense, technical analysis makes use of stock charts to study the past movement of prices in an attempt to anticipate the probable future movement of that security's price.

In other words, technical analysis uses a security's historical price, namely its open, close, high and low prices, as well as its volume data to construct stock chart to determine which direction the security should take, based on its past data.

Who should learn Technical Analysis?

- Anyone who is interested in the subject of technical analysis and wants to learn it in detail.
- Students of Finance, seeking a career in market research- for Equity, Commodity and Currency segments.
- Active investors and Traders who wish to improve their performances in the markets and achieve greater returns in their investing and trading portfolios.
- HNI's who should look for maximizing profit potential thru intelligent shifting of asset classes on proactive basis using market timing
- Options traders who need confirmation through Technical Analysis of their view on market trend and turn dates.

Topics covered during our course

- Understand Formation of Candle Sticks Pattern
- Understand Bullish & Bearish Candle Sticks
- Understand Various Indicators in the Chart
- Learn Exit / Sell Strategy
- How to manage funds & trade techniques
- How to scan performing stocks

What you get after attending our course

- Free 12 months support and help to generate your own buy and sell calls.
- Our own designed E-course material
- To make you understand how to make your own strategy in financial markets

Ways we conduct our classes

- One to One classes (Online)
- Group based classes (Online or offline)
- Corporate company staff's or executive

It's easy to reach us anytime.

WE'RE HERE
FOR YOU.

LET US KNOW HOW WE CAN HELP.

For more details & understanding, feel free to call me anytime.

Name : Kamlesh J Shah
Cell : 90828 91694